WALTER G. SMITH - EDITOR.

WEDNESDAY : : NOVEMBER 5.

Hail Kūhio; vale Wilcox.

"What will Washington say?"

Hawaii is ours and fairly won.

Wilcox is dead enough politically, anyhow.

For National Committeeman: George R. Carter!

The "boy" made the "man" look like fifteen cents.

Knifing in the Fifth did more suicide than murder.

"The life of the land is established in righteousness."

The next excitement will be furnished by the grand jury.

Something for that hoarse feeling is needed this morning.

Mr. Isenberg did not lose much in carrying weight for age.

This is probably the last we shall hear of the Home Rule party.

"There are others" in the Republican party who can do things.

The first Lady Dog legislature looks as if it had been the last one.

There should be no trouble about passing good bills at this session.

The Democrats did not let themselves be surrendered to any visible extent.

Wilcox has at last done something for Hawaii. He has got himself beaten.

It would pay Bob to get that piano back and console himself with music.

We see them on their winding way. Salt river's banks loom cold and gray.

"Holding aloof" from the campaign must have proved to be a freezing job.

The Republican rooster is crowing from the topmost branches of the highest tree.

The missionary as an issue doesn't seem to hurt the Republican party so you would notice it.

The Bulletin may now give its space to Home Rulers who want to tell how it feels under the debris.

Mr. Wilcox will have just about time enough in Washington this winter to get acquainted with the exit.

It won't be necessary for Theresa to stay and run the Legislature. She can go whenever the milk bill is paid.

To Clarence Crabbe and Jack Atkinson—greeting! They know how to run a campaign with all the modern frills.

Home Rulers, Home Rulers, beware of the day. When Republicans meet you in battle array.

The announcement in all the Home Rule papers that a vote for Kūhio would be one for the "Dole oligarchy" lost its scaring clause at the polls.

The splendid showing in the third precinct of the fourth district bears special witness to the organizing capacity of Jack Atkinson and R. N. Boyd, who made the fight.

It's almost too good to be true. First the courts were purified; now the legislature takes its turn at the disinfectant and Hawaii's seat in Congress is to have a clean occupant. Let's all hurrah again.

The politicians who said that the Republicans couldn't elect a poundmaster in Hawaii while Dole was Governor and who "held aloof" from the Republican campaign so as to make their prophecy good, are now squirming on the hot grill of the returns. That is what you smell.

The elections in the States will have a marked influence on the plans of President-makers. If the general trend is Republican, it will help Mr. Roosevelt; if Democratic it will encourage his rivals for the nomination. The returns in the Congressional fight will be awaited with greatest interest here, where the relation between local and Congressional concerns is closer than it is among the States.

The young King of Spain is dissatisfied without a navy and his country may have to build one. Yet it is a task upon which his responsible ministers would enter with reluctance. They know, if he does not, that a weak navy is worse than no navy at all, in that it cannot win important successes and may, through capture, augment the war strength of an enemy. Spain could hardly afford to spend more than $10,000,000 on anything, and such a sum would not go far in modern ship-building. Her role, like that of other small countries, is to keep out of naval armament and war and develop home resources. Under that head Holland, Belgium, Mexico and Denmark could give her needed lessons.

THE REPUBLICAN VICTORY.

At this writing it seems assured that Prince Kūhio is elected by a substantial majority and that the Republicans will control the Legislature.

The vote on Oahu has been decisive. Where Parker got about 300 majority in 1900, Prince Kūhio gets between 900 and 1000 majority this year. This is enough to overcome a large adverse majority elsewhere, though such a majority is by no means anticipated. We look to see the tidal wave of Republicanism as much in evidence elsewhere in the group as here.

The Republican legislative candidates on Oahu make a surprising exhibit of strength considering how largely the fight was centered on the Delegate. The result as it appears at this writing will benefit every man, woman and child in Hawaii. It means better government, better times and a restoration of business confidence. Furthermore it shows that when the conservative people of the Territory go into politics with a united front, nothing can withstand them. Here as elsewhere in the nation, BUSINESS IS KING.

HASTY IMPRESSIONS.

Senator Burton, if sincere in his views on Hawaii, simply shows how impossible it is for any one to come here and get truthful impressions off hand. Not less than a year is needed, and a year very full of experiences at that, to acquire anything like a just view of things Hawaiian. Over on the Coast twelve months are hardly time enough to give a "tenderfoot" to get over his pedal weakness; yet an eastern stranger thinks he can come here to what, in its ethnological and historical aspects, is a foreign country, stay a couple of months, and inform himself fully as to what Hawaii is and what changes of laws or customs would be beneficial to it.

To know Hawaii so as to be fit to legislate for it in Congress, a man should have studied its inner history and all the phases of the long struggle, which is not ended yet, between civilization and heathenism here. He should understand into what schools of thought the community is divided and what divided it. Especially should he know the Polynesian character, not merely as it shows itself in hospitality to the influential stranger, but as it exhibits itself in business, in morals and in legislation. The same study should be applied to the white character as it has developed in the school of the missionary, the business man, the beachcomber and the latter day adventurer. Naturally the inquirer must not identify himself with any one class or absorb any one influence; but must get acquainted with all classes and become as intimate with them as he can.

He would do this if he wished to make himself an authority upon the characteristics of any European people; and why not here, where the life of the body politic is derived from at least three European races, two Asiatic races, a Polynesian majority and from Americans who were either born here or have immigrated from every State and Territory, bringing with them their peculiar and by no means identical ideas. Moreover both monarchist and democratic views intermingle. In the course of years a society like nothing on the mainland has grown up; a society which has its own distinctive place in the world and if treated wisely by the governing power, will be dealt with on that basis.

On these accounts the writer, who lands, looks about and departs and the inquiring Senator who makes even a month's visit, have become jointly responsible for a great variety of misleading impressions of Hawaii which prevail on the mainland. Doubtless they are sincere enough, but like the car-window Europeans who run over to America to write a book of impressions, they are more diverting than accurate. We do not doubt that Senator Burton believed all he was told about Boston missionaries coming here to trade tickets to heaven for valuable real estate; but if he had taken the assessment lists and spent a few months in looking up the character and antecedents of white ownership here he would have found his sensational theories flatly contradicted by the facts. Such an investigation might be irksome but nothing less will qualify a man to instruct Congress as to the actual landed relation between the missionary and his native convert.

The Hawaiians have done themselves proud. They have shown that they know their responsibilities as American voters and have the best interests of the Territory at heart. Nobody will venture to attack a suffrage which has been so prudently and bravely exercised.

Wilcox may remark with the actor who got all the eggs: "Things are coming my way."

The pictures of Achi and McCandless don't look natural without that after-election smile.

There are two N's in the Fifth.

The cheers of the street crowds will be echoed by Hawaiian investors on the mainland.

Cayless may as well crawl into a hole and close up the entrance with a cigar stub.

The man who didn't get a Home Rule nomination has the congratulations now.

Wilcox was a better runner in his revolutions than he is in politics.

The Portuguese piece club went to pieces at the first broadside.

There is a fine opening for Wilcox in the political graveyard.

That leper bill may as well be put on the waste paper file.

There was a yellow streak in the Ng Mon War returns.

The idol of his people will be idle for some time now.

It was a landslide and an avalanche combined.

Kūhio was no Jonah in this campaign.

"I am like Napoleon"—at St. Helena.

Sugar stocks will get sweeter now.

To Kūhio: Many happy returns.

Old as the Pyramids

And as little changed by the ages, is Scrofula, than which no disease, save Consumption, is responsible for a larger mortality, and Consumption is its outgrowth.

It affects the glands, the mucous membranes, tissues and bones; causes bunches in the neck, catarrhal troubles, tickets, inflamed eyelids, sore ears, cutaneous eruptions, etc.

"I suffered from scrofula, the disease affecting the glands of my neck. I did everything I was told to do to eradicate it, but without success. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the swelling in my neck entirely disappeared and my skin resumed a smooth, healthy appearance. The cure was complete." Miss ANNA MITCHELL, 915 Scott St., Covington, Ky.
